

Wendy Tyson-Wood

DIRECTOR OF GOVERNMENT RELATIONS

Wendy Tyson-Wood professional career and experience spans several years, with successful assignments completed in the public, private, and academic sectors.

Wendy holds a Bachelor of Science in Accounting, supplemented with an MBA courses at the University of Connecticut, Instructional Design courses from The George Washington University, a Certificate in Project Management, and Oracle Training for Applications and Development Program. With her knowledge of various sectors and her extensive entrepreneurial experience, she brings a broad set of skills to her role as Director of Government Relations at JKA.

Throughout her entrepreneurial career, she was responsible for a multitude of large budget projects and reports focused on transit and transportation safety. She also spearheaded the design, development, and implementation of a $2.5 billion database for a Fortune 500 company.

Tyson-Wood has extensive knowledge of working with government agencies, having designed a major request for proposal and grant-writing template system/process. Since its implementation, it has become the standard instrument for non-profit associations to submit proposals to over 200 corporations. At JKA, she will be working with clients to provide technical assistance on the best practices to respond to and acquire RFPs from government agencies, a core component of the organization.
